WELCOME AND INTRODUCTION TO THE RESOURCE GUIDE

Viral hepatitis is an important public health concern in Los Angeles County that disproportionately affectscertain populations. Hepatitis A transmission is often associated with unsanitary conditions, which places persons experiencing homelessness (PEH) at increased risk. Hepatitis B prevalence is highest among people born in countries with a higher prevalence of the virus. Hepatitis C is also a common infection, especially among persons who inject drugs, but many are unaware of their status.

This comprehensive resource guide provides information on accessing care for viral hepatitis and other illnesses that are often seen concurrently, such as HIV, sexually transmitted infections (STIs), and substance use disorders. It is designed to help healthcare providers, social workers, and community organizations connect individuals to the full spectrum of health services, including testing, treatment, education, and prevention resources. Whether you're addressing viral hepatitis, substance use, or other related conditions, this guide aims to ensure you have the tools and information needed to support those at higher risk, including homeless individuals, immigrants, and populations at higher risk for STIs.

Historically, this Hepatitis C Resource Guide was first developed with a primary focus on addressing hepatitis C treatment. At the time, the guide was designed to help connect individuals, particularly those in underserved communities, to Hepatitis C testing, treatment, and support services. Over time, the scope of the guide has evolved to reflect broader public health priorities in Los Angeles County.

While its foundation remains in providing comprehensive hepatitis C services, the guide now encompasses a wide array of healthcare resources, from HIV and STI care to supportive housing and mental health services. Despite this expansion, the guide retains its title to honor its origins and its continuing commitment to addressing the hepatitis C epidemic.

The Hepatitis C Task Force for Los Angeles County (HCTF) is a collaborative group of public and private agencies, advocates, and concerned individuals working together to end Hepatitis C in Los Angeles County. The Task Force is committed to preventing new infections and improving the quality of life for people living with hepatitis C. The HCTF serves all individuals, regardless of race, color, religious beliefs, sexual orientation, age, national origin, or disability.

The HCTF's primary goals are:

1. Developing and enhancing systems for hepatitis C prevention, testing, treatment, care, and support.
2. Advocating for progressive hepatitis C policies and securing funding to sustain services.
3. Raising public awareness and promoting education about hepatitis C.

The HCTF leads several key activities, including the Annual Hepatitis C Summit, which convenes healthcare providers, public health professionals, and community partners to share best practices, address barriers to care, and highlight innovative strategies to eliminate hepatitis C. The Task Force also engages in local, statewide, and national advocacy efforts and provides direct community advocacy by helping individuals access education, peer support, and professional care.

Beginning in 2026, the Viral Hepatitis Unit (VHU) of the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health will join forces with the University of Southern California (USC) Keck School of Medicine to support future HCTF meetings, educational events, and collaborative efforts. This partnership reflects a shared commitment to advancing research, strengthening community engagement, and improving access to viral hepatitis prevention and care across Los Angeles County.

Hepatitis, HIV, and STIs

Hepatitis

Hepatitis: A, B, and C Overview

Hepatitis is an inflammation of the liver that can be caused by a variety of viruses. Hepatitis A, B, and C virus infections are the ones of public health importance because of the potential to either prevent or treat these viruses. Each virus has unique modes of transmission, prevention methods, and treatment options. This section provides a comprehensive guide to understanding these viruses, how they spread, symptoms to look out for, and the available treatment and prevention strategies. Testing and early intervention are crucial, especially for populations at higher risk for hepatitis infection.

What is Hepatitis?

Hepatitis refers to liver inflammation (i.e., liver injury) and it can be caused by many infectious and non- infectious causes. Some viral infections, notably Hepatitis B and C, can result in chronic hepatitis that can cause long-term liver damage, including cirrhosis and liver cancer. Each type of hepatitis virus differs in how it spreads, how severe the infection may become, and the available treatment options.

Hepatitis Type	Transmission	Symptoms	Treatment	Prevention
Hepatitis A	Contaminated food, water, or close contact with infected individuals	Fatigue, jaundice, nausea, vomiting	Resolves on its own	Vaccination, in most cases proper hygiene
Hepatitis B	Blood, sexual contact, mother-to-child during birth	Abdominal pain, jaundice, chronic liver disease	Antiviral medications for chronic cases	Vaccination, avoid sharing needles, safe sex
Hepatitis C	Blood, mainly through sharing needles or exposure to infected blood	Often asymptomatic until liver damage occurs	Antiviral medications, curable in most cases	No vaccine, avoid sharing needles, safe sex

Hepatitis A, B, and C Testing Criteria

Hepatitis Type	Testing for Chronic Infection
Hepatitis A	No chronic infection testing is required for Hepatitis A. It does not cause chronic liver disease, and most individuals recover fully after an acute infection.
Hepatitis B	Chronic infection testing is recommended for people at risk of long-term liver damage or those with ongoing infection. • HBsAg (Hepatitis B surface antigen): Indicates current hepatitis B infection. • Anti-HBs (Hepatitis B surface antibody): Indicates recovery and immunity from hepatitis B infection. HBcAb (Hepatitis B core antibody): Shows previous or ongoing infection.
Hepatitis C	Testing is crucial for individuals with a chronic infection for disease management and treatment. • HCV RNA (Hepatitis C viral RNA): Confirms the presence of the hepatitis C virus. • Anti-HCV (Hepatitis C antibody): Indicates past or current infection. • Liver function tests (ALT, AST): To monitor liver damage.

Treatment Options

Hepatitis Type	Treatment
Hepatitis A	No specific treatment; rest, hydration, and supportive care to manage symptoms
Hepatitis B	Regular monitoring for disease activity. Antiviral medications for chronic active infections.
Hepatitis C	Direct-acting antiviral (DAA) medications that can cure the infection in most persons.

HEPATITIS A

Hepatitis A is a contagious liver infection caused by the Hepatitis A virus (HAV). It is one of the most common forms of hepatitis worldwide. The infection can range from a mild illness lasting a few weeks to a severe illness lasting several months, and in rare cases, it can be fatal.

How Hepatitis A Spreads

Hepatitis A spreads through ingestion of food or water with microscopic contamination of fecal matter from an infected person, which can happen when someone does not wash their hands after using the restroom. Close personal contact, such as caring for an infected person, also increases risk.

Symptoms of Hepatitis A

While symptoms can vary between individuals, many people may not experience symptoms until the infection has caused significant liver damage. Common symptoms include:

- Fever
- Fatigue
- Jaundice (yellowing of the skin and eyes)
- Nausea and vomiting
- Abdominal pain
- Loss of appetite
- Diarrhea
- Dark urine and pale stool

Prevention and Vaccination

A vaccination is available to prevent Hepatitis A and is recommended for:

- All children, certain high-risk groups: including travelers to areas with high rates of Hepatitis A,
- people with chronic liver disease, and men who have sex with men.

In addition to vaccination, practicing good hygiene, such as washing hands thoroughly with soap and water, avoiding contaminated food and water, and practicing safe sexual practices, can help prevent the spread of Hepatitis A.

HEPATITIS B

Hepatitis B is a viral infection that affects the liver. It can cause both acute and chronic illness. The hepatitis B virus (HBV) is transmitted through contact with the blood or other body fluids of an infected person. While acute hepatitis B infection may cause mild illness or no symptoms at all, chronic hepatitis B infection can lead to severe liver damage, liver cancer, and even death if left untreated.

How Hepatitis B Spreads

Hepatitis B spreads primarily through, contact with infected blood or bodily fluids, such as through sexual contact, sharing needles or syringes, or from mother to child during childbirth. As well as, unsafe medical practices, such as sharing needles or using improperly sterilized medical equipment. Other less common routes of transmission include sharing personal items like razors with an infected person, or from an infected person coughing or sneezing on you.

Symptoms of Hepatitis B

While symptoms can vary between individuals, many people may not experience symptoms until the infection has caused significant liver damage. Common symptoms include:

- Fatigue
- Jaundice (yellowing of the skin and eyes)
- Nausea and vomiting
- Abdominal pain
- Dark urine and pale stool

Prevention and Vaccination

A vaccination is available to prevent Hepatitis B and is recommended for all infants at birth and for adults at increased risk of infection or severe disease.

Besides vaccination, there are several other important ways to prevent the spread of hepatitis B:

- Safe sex
- Avoid sharing needles
- Sterilize medical equipment
- Screening and testing
- Encourage disclosure

HEPATITIS C

Hepatitis C is a viral infection that affects the liver. It is caused by the hepatitis C virus (HCV), which can lead to both acute and chronic liver disease. Hepatitis C is a major global health concern, with millions of people affected worldwide.

How Hepatitis C Spreads

Hepatitis C is primarily spread through contact with the blood of an infected person. This can occur through:

- Sharing needles or other equipment for injecting drugs,
- Receiving blood transfusions or organ transplants from infected donors,
- Needlestick injuries in healthcare settings,
- Birth to an infected mother,
- Less commonly, hepatitis C can be transmitted through sexual contact with an infected person or from mother to child during childbirth, particularly if the mother has HIV or another bloodborne infection.

Symptoms of Hepatitis C

While symptoms can vary between individuals, many people may not experience symptoms until the infection has caused significant liver damage. Common symptoms include:

- Fever
- Fatigue
- Jaundice (yellowing of the skin and eyes)
- Nausea and vomiting
- Abdominal pain
- Loss of appetite
- Chronic hepatitis C infection can lead to serious liver complications, such as cirrhosis and liver cancer, over time.
- Dark urine and pale stool

Prevention and Vaccination

Preventing hepatitis C transmission involves serval key strategies:

- Avoiding Sharing Needles: Individuals who inject drugs should never share needles, syringes, or other drug paraphernalia. Access to sterile injection equipment and harm reduction programs can help reduce the risk of hepatitis C transmission among people who inject drugs.
- Practicing Safe Sex: Using condoms consistently and correctly can reduce the risk of sexual transmission of hepatitis C, although the risk is lower than for other sexually transmitted infections.

- Ensuring Safe Healthcare Practices: Healthcare settings should adhere to strict infection control practices to prevent needlestick injuries and other exposures to blood or body fluids. Proper sterilization of medical equipment and adherence to universal precautions are essential.
- Screening and Testing: Identifying individuals at risk for hepatitis C and offering testing and counseling services are critical for early detection and treatment. Routine screening is recommended for individuals at increased risk, including people who inject drugs and baby boomers (those born between 1945 and 1965).
- Vaccination: While there is currently no vaccine for hepatitis C, vaccination against hepatitis A and hepatitis B can help prevent coinfection and reduce the burden of liver disease.

HIV and STI Testing and Treatment

Maintaining sexual healthis essential for overallwell-being.Whetheryou're seeking information, prevention strategies, or testing services, Los Angeles County offers a variety of resources designed to meet the needs of the community, including specialized services for LGBTQIA+ individuals. This section provides an overview of available services, hotlines, testing centers, and treatment options for HIV and sexually transmitted infections (STIs) such as hepatitis and syphilis. We encourage sexually active people to get tested every three months. Find the location and time that works best for you.

General STI Information

Sexually transmitted infections (STIs) are infections passed from one person to another through sexual contact. They can affect anyone, regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity. Many STIs, such as chlamydia, gonorrhea, and syphilis, can be treated with antibiotics if caught early. Others, like HIV and hepatitis, are conditions that require long-term care but are manageable with appropriate treatment.

Why Get Tested?

- Early detection leads to better outcomes for treatment.
- Many STIs do not show symptoms right away, or at all, so regular testing is critical.
- Free and confidential testing is widely available in Los Angeles County.

Prevention Tips:

- Use condoms or other barrier methods.
- Get vaccinated for hepatitis A and B.
- Get screened for hepatitis C.
- Talk to your medical provider about Post-Exposure Prophylaxis (PEP) for emergency exposure to HIV (taken after exposure) or Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP) to reduce the ongoing risk of HIV (taken daily as prevention).
- Talk to your medical provider about Doxycycline Post-Exposure Prophylaxis (DoxyPEP), taken within 72 hours after sexual activity, to reduce the risk of getting STIs such as syphilis, chlamydia, and gonorrhea.
- Get tested for HIV and STIs regularly (every three months), especially if you're sexually active, have multiple partners, or have condomless sex.

Overview Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP), Post-Exposure Prophylaxis (PEP), and Doxycycline Post-Exposure Prophylaxis (DoxyPEP) are important and highly effective tools in preventing HIV and sexually transmitted infections (STIs). Each serves a unique purpose in reducing the risk of acquiring HIV or an STI

Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP) What is PrEP?

PrEP is a daily pill, or bi-monthly injection, taken by individuals who do not have HIV. When taken as prescribed, PrEP can reduce the risk of acquiring HIV by up to 99%.

2. Testing: Before starting PrEP, and every 3 months, your medical provider will screen you for HIV and STIs and check basic labs.

3. Prescription: If appropriate, your healthcare provider will prescribe PrEP and provide ongoing support.

2. Testing and Prescription: A healthcare provider will conduct tests and prescribe PEP if necessary.

3. Follow-Up: Complete the 28-day course of medication and attend follow-up appointments. Starting PrEP immediately after PEP is highly recommended if HIV risk is ongoing.

- DoxyPEP must be taken within 72 hours of STI exposure, especially if a condom was not used, a condom broke, or there was a sexual assault.

Who Should Consider DoxyPEP?

- Gay, bisexual, and other men who have sex with men and transgender women who have had 1 bacterial STI within the last 12 months.
- Any other populations should consider shared decision making with their medical provider before starting DoxyPEP.

Access to health insurance is essential for getting comprehensive medical care in California. If you need coverage, the two primary options are Medi-Cal and Covered California. Both programs provide access to essential health benefits but have different eligibility criteria, financial support, and enrollment processes.

Medi-Cal vs. Covered California

Medi-Cal and Covered California both offer health coverage, but they serve different populations and operate under different rules:

Criteria	Medi-Cal	Covered California
Who It's For	Low-income California residents	Lawfully present California residents who don't qualify for full Medi-Cal
Cost	Free or very low cost for most eligible residents	Plans may require premiums and out-of-pocket costs; subsidies may be available
Eligibility	Income-based eligibility (low-income)	All lawfully present residents; subsidies available based on income

Both Medi-Cal and Covered California provide the same core health benefits, including:

- Ambulatory care (outpatient services)
- Emergency services
- Hospitalization
- Maternity and newborn care
- Mental health and substance use disorder services
- Prescription drugs
- Preventive and wellness services
- Rehabilitative services
- Pediatric services, including dental and vision care

Key 2026 Updates and Notes

Covered California

- Covered California offers financial help (subsidies) to reduce monthly premiums and out-of-pocket costs.
- Federal Enhanced Premium Tax Credits — which make many plans cheaper — are currently subject to federal policy decisions. Without federal action, financial assistance may change in future years.

Medi-Cal

- Medi-Cal eligibility rules remain in effect for 2026, but state and federal policy changes could affect enrollment categories and documentation requirements.
- Starting January 1, 2026, some adults without regular immigration status may no longer be able to enroll in full-scope Medi-Cal. Those already enrolled may retain coverage if they maintain eligibility and renew on time.

- Complete applications
- Understand plan options and financial help

FQHCs serve communities on a sliding fee scale based on income, making healthcare and enrollment support accessible regardless of financial situation.

Who Should Consider Which Option?

- Medi-Cal is ideal for low-income individuals and families who meet income thresholds. It often has little to no cost for services.
- Covered California is best for individuals and families who do not qualify for full Medi-Cal but need affordable coverage; subsidies can significantly reduce costs.

Regardless of which option you pursue, enrolling and maintaining coverage helps ensure access to preventive care, chronic disease management, mental health services, and hospital care.

To find a nearby FQHC:

- Visit the HRSA Find a Health Center website to locate a Federally Qualified Health Center.

Los Angeles County currently has six Medi-Cal Managed Care Plans:

- L.A. Care Health Plan
- Health Net

Enhanced Care Management (ECM)

Enhanced Care Management (ECM) is a statewide Medi-Cal benefit designed to support members with complex medical, behavioral health, and social needs. ECM is a core component of California's Medi-Cal transformation and focuses on delivering care where people live and receive services — not just in clinical settings.

What ECM Provides

Eligible Medi-Cal members enrolled in managed care may receive:

A single Lead Care Manager who coordinates care across medical, behavioral health, dental, and social services

- In-person, community-based care management

Who May Qualify for ECM

ECM is available to Medi-Cal members with the highest and most complex needs, including but not limited to:

- Individuals experiencing homelessness or housing instability
- Persons with serious mental illness or substance use disorders
- Individuals with multiple chronic health conditions
- High utilizers of emergency or inpatient services
- Individuals involved in multiple systems of care

Eligibility is determined by the member's Medi-Cal Managed Care Plan.

Community Supports (CalAIM)

Community Supports are non-medical services that address health-related social needs and help Medi-Cal members avoid higher-cost care such as emergency department visits or hospitalizations.

Examples of Community Supports

Services may include:

- Housing transition and navigation services
- Medically tailored meals and nutrition support
- Medically supportive housing services
- Asthma remediation to reduce environmental triggers

How ECM Aligns with CHWs and CBO Patient Navigation

Enhanced Care Management (ECM), the Community Health Worker (CHW) Medi-Cal benefit, and Community-Based Organization (CBO) Patient Navigation programs work together to support Medi-Cal members with complex medical and social needs.

While these services are administered through different systems, they are complementary and often serve the same high-need populations, including people experiencing homelessness, individuals with chronic conditions, and those navigating behavioral health or substance use challenges.

- ECM provides intensive, ongoing care coordination through a Medi-Cal Managed Care Plan.
- CHWs deliver community-based, culturally responsive support and health system navigation.
- CBO Patient Navigators assist with outreach, enrollment, referrals, and connection to services such as SSPs, MAT, housing, and social supports.

Together, these services help ensure individuals are not only connected to health insurance, but are also supported in accessing care, remaining engaged, and addressing social determinants of health.

How These Services Work Together

A CBO Patient Navigator may identify someone who is uninsured, unstably housed, or struggling to access care.

- Once enrolled in Medi-Cal, a CHW may support the individual with appointment scheduling, health education, and linkage to services.
- If the individual has complex needs, the Medi-Cal Managed Care Plan may assign Enhanced Care Management (ECM) to provide intensive care coordination across systems.

This layered approach helps reduce gaps in care and improves outcomes for people who face the greatest barriers.

Community-Based Support

Community Health Worker (CHW) Benefit under Medi-Cal and Community-Based Organizations (CBOs) Patient Navigator

Introduction

The Community Health Worker (CHW) benefit and the Community-Based Organizations (CBOs) Patient Navigation Programs are key components of California's approach to expanding access to healthcare for medically underserved populations. Both services are covered under Medi-Cal, California's Medicaid program, and help reduce health disparities, improve patient outcomes, and connect individuals to needed care and services. These programs are especially beneficial for people who may face barriers to accessing care, such as language barriers, low income, housing instability, or chronic health conditions.

Community Health Worker (CHW) Benefit in California

The Community Health Worker (CHW) benefit in California is a newly implemented service under Medi-Cal, aimed at improving access to healthcare services, particularly for low-income and medically underserved populations. Community Health Workers serve as a bridge between healthcare providers and the community, offering guidance, education, and support to help patients access and use health services.

What is a Community Health Worker (CHW)?

CHWs are trusted members of the community who help individuals navigate the healthcare system. They provide services such as:

- Health education on prevention and management of chronic diseases.
- Outreach and enrollment support for Medi-Cal and other healthcare programs.
- Health system navigation to help people access and make the best use of available resources.
- Culturally competent support for individuals with limited English proficiency
- Linkage to social services (housing, food programs, transportation)

By leveraging their personal knowledge of the community, CHWs provide tailored support that is both comprehensive and patient-centered.

Who is Eligible?

Individuals enrolled in Medi-Cal may be connected with a Community Health Worker if they need extra support accessing or using healthcare services. CHW services are particularly helpful for:

- Low-income individuals
- Individuals experiencing homelessness
- Persons with chronic illnesses (e.g., diabetes, hypertension)
- People with mental health or substance use disorders
- Individuals experiencing language or system navigation barriers

How to Access CHW Services

Eligible Medi-Cal members do not apply directly for this benefit. Instead, they are connected through:

- Medi-Cal managed care plans
- Primary care providers or case managers
- Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHCs) or community clinics

Once connected, a CHW will work with you to coordinate care, support appointments, assist in accessing services, and link you with additional resources as needed. To learn more about the Community Health Worker benefit and how it can help you, visit the following resources:

- Medi-Cal Benefits Overview
- California Department of Health Care Services

Contact your local Federally Qualified Health Center (FQHC) or community clinic for support in connecting with a CHW.

Community-Based Organizations (CBOs) Patient Navigation Program

Through outreach and navigation services, CBOs help people complete applications, enroll in benefits, and connect to ongoing care.

Program Services Include:

- Direct community outreach
- Print and electronic media outreach
- Application assistance for Medi-Cal and other programs
- Help accessing and using healthcare services
- Support with enrollment and retention in care
- Assistance with renewals and troubleshooting
- Referrals to supportive services (housing, food, transportation)

Priority Target Populations

This program focuses on populations who often encounter barriers to care, including:

- Persons with mental health needs
- Persons with substance use disorder
- Persons with other disabilities
- Older adults
- Individuals experiencing homelessness
- Young people of color
- Immigrants and mixed-status families
- Persons with limited English proficiency
- Low-wage workers and families

- Syringe Service Providers (SSPs): Offer clean syringe exchange, safe disposal, safer use supplies, overdose education, naloxone, and referrals for treatment and healthcare.
- Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT): Provides FDA-approved medications and support services for opioid or alcohol use disorders, helping reduce cravings and support recovery pathways.

Together, SSPs and MAT programs help form a comprehensive harm-reduction and recovery framework that improves health outcomes and supports long-term engagement in care.

Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT) Program

Medication forAddictionTreatment (MAT)is a provenapproach to treating Substance Use Disorders (SUDs) that combines FDA-approved medications with counseling to help individuals manage their addiction and support their recovery. MAT has been shown to reduce cravings, minimize withdrawal symptoms, and improve overall quality of life, leading to a sustainable recovery and reduced risk of overdose.

Why MAT?

- Reduce Cravings: Cravings can be intense and persistent, making it difficult for individuals to maintain recovery. MAT helps reduce these cravings, making it easier to stay on track.
- Minimize Withdrawal Symptoms: Withdrawal from substances can be uncomfortable and sometimes dangerous. MAT helps manage these symptoms, making the process of recovery more manageable.
- Sustain Recovery: MAT supports long-term recovery by helping individuals cut back on or stop substance use completely. It provides stability and helps individuals rebuild their lives.

How Does MAT Work?

MAT works similarly to medications used for other chronic conditions. By managing withdrawal symptoms and cravings, MAT helps individuals focus on recovery and behavioral changes. It supports ongoing recovery efforts by providing stability and reducing the risk of relapse.

MAT Options For Opioid Addiction:

- Methadone: Reduces cravings and withdrawal symptoms. Available in liquid, pill, or wafer form and must be taken daily.
- Buprenorphine: Reduces opioid cravings and withdrawal symptoms. It is a safe option for some individuals and may be taken less frequently than methadone.
- Naltrexone: Blocks the effects of opioids and is available as a daily pill or a monthly injection. It can be prescribed by any licensed healthcare provider.
- Naloxone: Used to prevent opioid overdoses. Available as a nasal spray or injection, Naloxone can be obtained through health providers, local pharmacies, or the LA County CORE Center.

For Alcohol Addiction:

- Acamprosate: Helps people in recovery avoid drinking. Typically taken three times a day.
- Naltrexone: Reduces the pleasurable effects of alcohol. Available as a daily pill or monthly injection.
- Disulfiram: Causes unpleasant reactions if alcohol is consumed. Taken once daily, it helps deter drinking.

Why Should You Use HMIS?

HMIS is critical for:

- Data collection: It tracks housing and service provision for clients experiencing homelessness.
- Case management: Providers use HMIS to assess clients' needs, track their progress, and coordinate services.

HMIS helps providers serve populations such as:

- Those at risk of homelessness
- Populations accessing supportive housing or homeless outreach services

How to Request Access to HMIS

To gain access to HMIS, follow these steps:

1. Complete the HMIS Basic Navigation Training Series:
   - Providers must first complete this training to understand HMIS functionality, navigation, and data entry. The training is tailored based on the population you serve (e.g., individuals/youth, families, street outreach).
     - Training can be accessed through the Centralized Training Academy (CTA).

2. Request an HMIS Account:
   - After completing the training, your information will be automatically processed, and you will receive an email with your account details. Make sure to check your spam/junk folder.
   - If you need expedited access, you can submit a support ticket through the HMIS support system.

3. Reactivate or Reset Your Account:

- Accounts that are inactive for over 30 days may require reactivation. For accounts inactive for over 90 days, re-enrollment in the training series may be required. If locked out, a password reset can also be requested.

More information can be found in the HMIS Knowledge Base.

Training Requirements

- Basic Navigation Training: Covers essential system use, from entering client data to managing program enrollments and exits.
